

SUMMER & FALL 2024 PROGRAM GUIDE

PRESERVATION • EDUCATION • RESEARCH

DEAR FRIENDS,

This year has already been one to remember. I am stunned by the vibrancy of the natural spaces that surround us. Like many of us, we were told to prepare for drought conditions, and for a while I believed it. But before long, the rains came and brought the entire forest to life. Leaves, wildflowers, dragonflies, migratory birds, fish in the swales, morel mushrooms – everything seemed to come to life in an instant. What was predicted to be a bleak season, turned out to be a robust, vibrant, and early spring, especially here in Baileys Harbor. I cannot tell you the number of times I have asked Tony, our Director of Research, “Come on, isn’t it too early for that?” He always reminds me that every year is slightly different, but between the warming temperatures and consistent precipitation, the natural environments surrounding us have come alive.

What does this mean for the summer? I don’t exactly know. But I can hope that this vibrancy maintains and that we can learn from it. Around here we are preparing for earlier bloom times and rapid change all while measuring how these changes compare to years past through citizen science activities like Project Budburst and Monarch Watch among others.

This summer and fall we are diving into the things that make the Sanctuary special. From mushroom forays, healing hikes, and stewardship workshops to monarch madness, a bat wingding and lake lessons – we are excited to present to you a season full of engagement, learning, and take-home knowledge. We strive every day to inspire the conservation of Nature and look forward to doing that with you through an abundance of offerings. Our programs are taught by the most spectacular naturalists, experts, volunteers and friends of The Ridges.

Join us in celebrating another year of beauty, another year of stewardship and another year of inspiration. I cannot wait to see you soon!

Together in conservation,

Katie Krouse
Executive Director

Join us for the 2nd Annual Citizen Science Symposium on October 26, 2024!

Sanctuary Story Hour Series

Saturdays, June 8th, July 13th & August 10th, 10:00AM–11:00AM

Fee: Free

Bring your budding naturalists to our Sanctuary Story Hour! Each month you will hear a Ridges staff member read a nature-themed story at a new location in the Sanctuary. At the end of the story, make a fun nature craft to take home before heading out to explore the trails and swales!

Meet: Cook-Albert Fuller Nature Center

Pollinator Week

June 17th–June 23rd

The Ridges is celebrating National Pollinator Week! Pollinators are a critical part of the agricultural industry, providing pollination of crops. They also help the populations of native plants that they pollinate reproduce, having a positive impact on their ecosystem. Protecting pollinators is a necessary part of protecting The Ridges’ native habitat. In 2017, we planted pollinator gardens in the front of our nature center. Each year, these gardens provide a food source and habitat for pollinator species in our ecosystem, including bees, butterflies, flies, ants, hummingbirds, bats, and insects. During Pollinator Week at The Ridges, we’ll have a display table in our exhibit with resources and free native seed packets to help pollinators thrive in your local habitat. We’ll also highlight items from our Nature Store that focus on pollinators!

Ridges Healing Hike With Author Jess Grasse

Friday, June 21st, 1:00PM–3:00PM

Fee: Public $15 | Member $12 | 16 & Under $7

Experience the hike featured in the meditative book, Healing Hikes of Door County, with author Jess Grasse! Enjoy the beauty of the Sanctuary during this reflective and restorative experience. The program will start at the Cabins with a conversation with Jess, then we’ll embark on the healing hike, stopping to practice a meditation from the book, journal, and enjoy a snack. Suitable for ages 12 & up.

MONARCH MADNESS

Tagged Monarch

Monarch Education

Have you ever seen a butterfly chrysalis or found a monarch caterpillar munching on a milkweed plant? Join us for this year's Monarch Madness event, where you can learn all about this important migratory butterfly species! This year, Monarch Madness will span a week in August to raise awareness of decreasing Monarch populations. We'll discuss the threats Monarchs face and how we can help support the populations we have in Wisconsin!

Daily Tagging Events

Monday, August 19th through Friday, August 23rd, 1:30PM-2:00PM

Fee: $5 per tag when available

Stop by the Nature Center during Monarch Madness, where Ridges staff will be on hand to answer questions and teach visitors about monarch caterpillars and butterfly migration. Each day we'll be doing demonstrations about the tagging process and tag butterflies that are ready to head out on their journey. The Ridges receives tags from the non-profit organization Monarch Watch, which we apply to the migrating monarch butterflies before they are released at the end of August. Tag or sponsor a monarch for $5 per tag while supplies last. Tagging kits available to take home for $5 per tag. Suitable for families of all ages.

Location: Cook-Albert Fuller Nature Center

Milkweed Workshop

Thursday, August 22nd, 2:00PM-3:00PM

Fee: Free

Curious about the ecological benefits of gardening with native plants like milkweed? Join us for this workshop to learn about providing habitat and food for pollinators and other organisms and how to plant a native garden. Learn tips on seed dispersal and planting milkweed, the only plant that monarch butterflies lay eggs on, and monarch caterpillars feed on. At the end of the presentation, take home a mix of Ridges Pollinator native seeds.

Location: Cook-Albert Fuller Nature Center

Monarch Story Hour

Friday, August 23rd, 10:00AM-11:30AM

Fee: Free

Bring your budding entomologists to our Monarch Story Hour for young children and families at the Family Discovery Trail! Hear Ridges staff read a story about this magnificent species and learn about their life cycle and annual migration. At the end of the story, make a fun craft to take home before heading out to explore the Discovery Trail to look for caterpillars in a monarch milkweed habitat. Suitable for families with young children.
